

20 Restaurants to Book for Thanksgiving Dinner in D.C.

There are few holidays eaters love more than Thanksgiving. Platters teeming with juicy turkey, flavorful stuffing, buttery mashed potatoes and pumpkin pie are a glorious tradition, as are the post-holiday sandwiches piled high with leftovers. However, it's no secret the hassle of roasting a giant bird, preparing all of the side dishes and hosting guests often takes the joy out of this gluttonous celebration. Thanks to several D.C. restaurants, Washingtonians can eat more and stress less this Thanksgiving.

Across the city, buffets and seasonal prix fixe menus will be offered on Turkey Day. Stay tuned for later this month, when Eater will also outline various carryout options available.

Ranging from classics like The Willard, to recent Michelin starred spots like Blue Duck Tavern and Plume, diners will surely be thankful for the bounty of holiday dinner options available on November 24. With hundreds of restaurants in the city, there will be many more out there open on the holiday (find around 250 right now on OpenTable right now alone) — but this map is a collection of some of the standout options out there. Not an advanced planner? Look for one of Eater's classic Last Minute Reservations Guides closer to the holiday.

8 Central Michel Richard

The late Michel Richard's French-American bistro will offer a three-course, prix fixe menu from noon to 8 p.m. Diners can choose from traditional options like turkey and pumpkin pie, while options including hanger steak and frites or cranberry almond bread pudding are also available. It's priced at $55 per person, but $27 for children under 12.

Facebook

1001 Pennsylvania Ave NW
Washington, D.C. 20004

(202) 626-0015

November 10, 2016